

View Larger

Colorful anti-aging extracts in a nourishing cream

Posted Thursday, December 30, 2010 by Marci Robin, Senior Online Editor

We love it when someone finds a new or unusual way to bring about the results so many of us want. Youthful hydration, for example. It's the promise of many a moisturizer. But a couple of the ingredients in Alchimie Forever's Kantic+ Intensely Nourishing Cream really help this product stand out from the pack.

It's not surprising to find a favorite antioxidant, grapeseed extract, in a face cream like this; nor were we shocked to see emollients like jojoba and vitamin E. However, it was refreshing to see two out-of-the-ordinary, found-in-the-forest resilience boosters: blueberry and red clover.

Blueberry doubles up on grapeseed's duties, keeping free radicals from damaging your face. Red clover is an unexpected anti-aging agent, doing wonders for skin elasticity by rousing more collagen production.

Dry and mature skin, especially, can benefit from the worldly wonders in this naturally luxurious formula.